PhD objectives	The PhD aims to form highly professional experts and scholars, who are able to both understand the complex system of law codes which rule and regulate the economic and social phenomena, and to handle the operative tools – juridic, economic and political – utilized by individuals and communities to interact between themselves and with public authorities. The multiple didactic and research methods that flow into the PhD project integrate themselves, through an interdisciplinary approach that focuses on a critical analysis of socio-economic events, with particular attention to the European integration reality. The final purpose of the PhD is to provide its students professional tools and competences that allow them to better understand the complexity of contexts within the human sciences that have to operate nowadays, in the juridic, administrative, and management fields. Following the normative for Innovation PhD each student

	must spend a research period in a Foreign University or a Research Institute lasting not less than 3 months and not more than 18 months.
